Man Killed in Fall from Overhead Rail Crossing

Howard Lambert, 28 of Vinton O Victim of Strange Accident Where T & O C Tracks Cross Route 30 East of Caledonia

Howard Lambert [illegible] of Vinton, O., was killed [illegible] when he fell approximately [illegible] the T & O C railroad [illegible] the pavement of [illegible] highway [illegible] at an overhead crossing about [illegible] of Marion [illegible] morning. No Answer To Call [illegible] I thought he knew what he was doing and had jumped down a few feet just to scare me. I [illegible] to him and asked if he was [illegible] answer. It [illegible] he fell like [illegible] feet [illegible] the roadway. I ran down and found him lying in the road almost in the center of the highway. I pulled him off the road and started to run toward a light to call for [illegible]. It proved to be a railroad flash signal. I tried to flag a couple of cars but couldn't. A bus stopped while I was a short distance away getting ready to start up the road looking for a house. The driver took my name and Lambert's name and said he'd call for help at the next stop. Another car stopped and the driver waited with me until the highway patrol and the ambulance came.

The W. C. Boyd ambulance took Lambert's body to the funeral home here and Jeffries was brought to Marion in a highway patrol car.

Jeffries told authorities he and Lambert had left Vinton Monday noon hopping a freight train and hoping to get to Toledo where Jeffries had worked before to seek jobs.

Hiked from Columbus

We got to some little place east of Columbus about 3 o'clock and got off there because we didn't think the train was headed enough toward the west. We washed up at a filling station got some lunch and began to walk up the tracks. We kept on walking until we got to this overhead crossing. We paused there and I suggested that we go down to the road and see what the route number was so we could tell where we were. Lambert agreed but suggested we go on across the bridge before going down to the road and that we try to find a place to get some sleep.

We started on across and then he fell.

Lambert, Jeffries said, worked in mines and did other manual work in the vicinity of his home but had decided to join him (Jeffries) in the journey to Toledo. Jeffries told authorities he had been employed in Toledo by the Condee Coal Co. for three years working only about nine months a year. The season ended in April and since that time he said he had been home but had planned to go back to Toledo to get a job until the coal season opened again in July.

First plans for Lambert to accompany him to Toledo to seek work were discussed last Wednesday night after they had attended a church service, Jeffries said. He added that they met again Sunday night at church and made final arrangements.

Wait for Relatives

Authorities planned to keep their investigation open until relatives of Lambert arrived and also asked Jeffries to remain in Marion until their inquiry is closed.

Jeffries said Lambert's correct name is William Howard Tolliver but that he adopted the name of his stepfather Lambert and for several years has used the name of Howard Lambert.

Authorities learned Lambert had a glass eye, the right one, and considered the possibility that this handicap of his sight might have been a factor in causing him to miss his footing in the darkness.

Lambert had between $2 and $3 in his pockets.

Neither Lambert nor his companion is married.

FLOOD CONTROL TO BE DELAYED

Demand for Economy Also Causes Side Tracking of $162 000 000 Army Bill

OHIO JOB MAY GO THROUGH

President Sees No Serious Postponement If Congress Appropriates Funds

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON May 4—Administration efforts to cut the cost of government brought recommendations today for postponement of additional flood control projects and a $162 000 000 army housing program.

Chairman Whittington Democrat of Mississippi of the house flood control committee said hearing on emergency flood control measures would be delayed indefinitely.

President Roosevelt he explained had asked that action be put off until completion of a study of flood control in relation to power development and navigation aids.

Sends Army Report

The President sent the committee an army report on revised plans for control work on the Ohio and Mississippi rivers where serious floods occurred early this year Whittington said.

If we don't get a change in the situation there will be no legislation this congress—and that area is where the big loss occurred.

Whittington said the President wrote him that no serious delay can come if the present session of the congress appropriates funds to undertake and continue some of the projects already authorized by previous congresses for the Mississippi and Ohio rivers.

Mr Roosevelt asked that the amount of money to be spent be considered in the light of the budgetary necessities of the government.

Some members predicted the President might discuss in a message to congress a national system of flood control power navigation and land conservation possibly based on the Tennessee valley authority idea.

A report that the budget bureau had rejected the army's big housing program was followed quickly by the announcement of Rep Havenner Progressive of California that he would ask $100 000 to carry out one of the rejected items for San Francisco.

Almost simultaneously Secretary Swanson asked appropriation of $18 958 000 for construction of naval buildings and other projects.

TEW RESIGNS AS GOODRICH LEADER

By The Associated Press

AKRON O May 4—With the statement that an executive of a big corporation burns up about two years of his life every 12 months," James D Tew stepped aside today at 55 as president of the B F Goodrich Co., where he started work 31 years ago for 15 cents an hour.

Vice Presidents S. B Robertson and T G Graham immediately were mentioned in some company circles as possible successors after Tew's surprise announcement that he would not allow his name to be presented for reelection at the annual stockholders' meeting in New York Wednesday.

Margaret Mitchell Astounded and Overwhelmed When Told of Decision

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK May 4—Margaret Mitchell wrote 1 037 pages for Gone With The Wind but she could find only four words with which to greet the news that her book had won the annual Pulitzer prize.

I'm astounded was the first reaction of the Atlanta author. She groped her words. Then—

I'm overwhelmed.

The award for the novel of Civil war days in Georgia carried with it $1 000 in cash a pittance compared to what she has earned from the 1 350 000 copies of the book already printed or what she will earn from the motion picture about to be made. But in honor it was high and Miss Mitchell joins a distinguished group of novelists who have received the award since its inauguration in 1918.

Miss Mitchell—in private life Mrs John R Marsh—was one of 14 men and women honored with the Pulitzer awards in journalism and letters announced last night by the trustees of Columbia university. Selection of her one and—she says—only novel was one of the least surprising to most critics.

TRIO MISSING MONTH BEFORE POLICE TOLD

Wife of One Believes He's Dead; State To Check Ticket Office Accounts.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., May 4 — Mrs. Verla R. Billingsley expressed a fear today that her husband, missing with two companions since March 29, was dead.

As police began the second day of an investigation of the disappearance of Billingsley, 4[illegible], Robert Bair, 4[illegible], and James Shadrach, [illegible] Mrs Billingsley said, "I don't believe he's alive. He probably drove into the river or something."

Officials of Ohio State university, where Billingsley was assistant director of athletic ticket sales, said his accounts were in perfect order. However, State Auditor Joseph T. Ferguson said he would have examiners check the accounts.

Mrs. Billingsley sought police aid yesterday after she, relatives of Shadrach, and university officials had conducted a fruitless search for more than a month.

The university employe's automobile has been missing since he [illegible] said bartender Charles Greulich of a north side grill told [illegible] they were going to take a trip to Cleveland or Cincinnati.

Train and Motor Carry Duke to His Bride-To-Be in French Chateau

TWO MEET ON DOORSTEP

Edward Hour Overdue and Fiancee's Excitement Had Mounted Steadily

By The Associated Press

MONTS France May 4—The Duke of Windsor was [illegible] to the [illegible] castle [illegible] today with the woman for whom he renounced an empire Wallis Warfield Simpson.

Five months and one day after [illegible] King Edward VIII [illegible] the [illegible] in Marion time when the [illegible] like a knight returning to his damsel [illegible] reached the ancient chateau.

He came from St Wolfgang Austria by train and by motor. His betrothed was there to greet him and that was what was first in their hearts. He had not seen her since the dark night of Dec [illegible] when she fled to Cannes from the abdication crisis that changed crowns for a quarter of the world.

Two Meet On Doorstep

Breathless and radiant Wallis Simpson met her beloved at the doorstep of the rambling chateau.

Preceded by a motorcycle [illegible] the limousine sent for the duke by Mrs Simpson [illegible] through the gates. A truck stacked with Edward's [illegible] cases rattled along behind.

Edward was an hour overdue and his fiancee's excitement had mounted by the minute. From Verneuil from where the duke [illegible] the Arlberg express the motor trip consumed four long hours.

The duke leaped from the car. He dashed to the threshold.

There he took the wife-to-be Wallis tenderly in his arms.

They went inside the castle arm in arm.

Twenty mobile guards and two squads of eight gendarmes each faced the grounds impressively all in their best and brightest uniforms. The Tours police chief and his aid watched with a critical eye to that officials about the place.

Wait Two Hours

At the entrance lodge the old lady of the gateway had put on a bonnet of Lorraine lace for the gala day. For two hours she had been standing almost motionless waiting to open the portals.

"This," said the old lady with a shrug, "is a thing I rarely do, put on my bonnet. But—voila, it is memorable day!"

Within the mossy chateau its great rooms gay with masses of lilacs, tulips and yellow acacia, a small house party had waited luncheon for Edward.

But Mrs. Simpson had been unable to stay inside. During the morning she walked in the garden alone.

The day started out grey and chilly but an hour before the duke arrived the sun burst out to show the countryside in all its splendor.

A knot of villagers had gathered outside the gates with waiting newspapermen to see the duke.

Wearing sabots the peasants climbed from bicycles and chatted with the gendarmes.

Driver Gapes at Crowd

A truck loaded with live pigs paused for a moment in the road and the grizzled driver gazed with mild curiosity at the crowd. An Englishwoman, on a tour from London, outside the newspaper photographers in taking pictures of everything in sight.

As the duke's car passed, every English newspaperman removed his hat.

Edward wore a black overcoat but no hat. He leaned forward smiling, and waved to the newspapermen.

First in his mind was a romantic rendezvous in this "knight errant and damsel" setting to discuss plans for marriage.

His sun-tanned face was a picture of boyish happiness as he left the car at the chateau door and embraced the woman for whom he had waited so long.

Only yesterday, she won her final freedom from her second marriage—to Ernest Aldrich Simpson, London ships broker. Her marriage to the duke will follow probably late in May or in June.

With Edward when he reached the chateau was a mysterious steel box, believed to contain jewelry. There was a box of edelweiss, the white flower that grows on the lonely Alpine crags that the duke has climbed in his 22 weeks of self exile—and—likewise for Mrs Simpson—a colorful dirndl, the Austrian peasant woman's garb.

Newsmen Received

Even before he came Herman L. Rogers, Mrs. Simpson's spokesman, received newspapermen on the chateau lawn and issued this statement:

"The Duke of Windsor will arrive at Cande today about lunchtime.

"His royal highness will come

STOCKS EFFECT MAJOR UPTURN

Rise Fractions to Three Points in Slow Dealings Credited to Earnings.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, May 4 — Without excitement or other feverish symptoms stock market leaders trudged into higher territory today for gains of fractions to three or more points.

Trading volume was only slightly larger than yesterday's restricted aggregate and the ticker tape dozed frequently.

Individual strength was credited partly to actual and prospective earnings, hopes for more favorable dividends and the calmer tone shown by markets abroad.

American Telephone pointed the way at the opening with a jump of about 4 points. It backed up later.

Prominent on the push were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Youngstown Sheet & Tube, General Motors, Chrysler, U. S. Rubber, Goodrich, Anaconda and American Smelting.

Bonds and commodities were quiet but the majority were on the advancing side.

The lift in the major telephone issue was attributed to some further investment accumulation based on reports lowering of long lines rates had resulted in a sharp upturn in business.

While exhibiting more confidence, both Wall Street and London were far from hasty in extending or replacing commitments in either securities or commodities.

No serious repercussions were expected to follow British financial settlement day Thursday, but it was suggested many inclined to await actual straightening out of speculative accounts in London before expanding positions.

Ability of steels to come back following momentary slides brought out analytical figures disclosing combined profits in the first three months for 22 companies in this line were 300 per cent better than last year's period. If prices of steel products are kept around current levels it was predicted a similar sharp earnings increase was a probability in the second quarter.

Friends of the motors voiced expectations distribution of the principal manufacturers in the present quarter should be at least 15 per cent over the same time last year.

225 BILLS PASSED BY OHIO ASSEMBLY

and almost half a dozen provide for administrative changes in the workmen's compensation laws.

Another labor-supported bill to receive approval abolishes educational requirements for persons taking civil service examinations.

Numerous enactments dealt with federal and state cooperation in social security, federal housing, flood control and soil conservation, and changes in the state laws to allow financial institutions and insurance companies to invest in new types of federal or federal guaranteed securities.

The state was made a party to the state employes retirement system and new retirement systems were provided for school board employes other than teachers and for county and municipal employes.

Other Legislation.

Other bills passed provide:

Limitation of two years on deficiency judgments against single and double residential homes and farm homesteads.

Equal rights for Negroes with whites in mercantile establishments.

A universal 50-cent fishing license and several measures regulating commercial fishing.

Requirements for hunters to display the numerals of their license on their backs.

Authorization for voting of special tax levies outside the 10-mill limitation during two years, by a majority for school purposes and 55 per cent for flood relief.

Increasing the highway patrol from 120 to 200; authorizing establishment of training schools for patrolmen and giving the patrol some additional authority in inquiring into crime and thefts.

Limiting jurisdiction of justices of the peace to their own bailiwicks in certain classes of cases.

Increasing terms of township trustees from two to four years.

Providing increased salaries for many boards of county commissioners.

Changing the method of filling vacancies on boards of county commissioners so Democrats would retain control. This measure, commonly referred to as the "sick commissioner" bill, was passed as an emergency which Republicans are preparing to test in the courts.

Increasing salaries of several state officials, including the commerce director, building and loan superintendent and registrar of motor vehicles, who were given increases of $500 to $1,000 per year.

Reenactment of the Best moratorium mortgage law.

Providing for 10 installment payments of delinquent taxes.

Giving rebates on penalties and interest on payment of delinquent taxes within specified times.

Bills to grant a state subsidy for parochial and private schools, free text books and free transportation for pupils of such schools failed in the house after receiving senate approval.

New Jersey Man Devises Novel Plan To End War

An unusual plan for the prevention of wars through cooperation of the citizens of Marion and 2,499 other cities in the world has been devised by Robert S Field of Vineland N J who has printed and distributed pamphlets to some one in each of the cities. The Marion copy came to The Star bearing the title 2,500 Against the World.

Mr Fields has prepared five lists showing the 500 most populous cities in the five leading occidental nations the United States England France Germany and Italy. Marion is No 302 in population and listed opposite Marion are the cities ranking as No 302 in the other countries.

Marion citizens should become better acquainted with citizens of other No 302 cities Mr Fields suggests. Through the exchange of visitors through special mention in local schools and the press and perhaps by correspondence among school children and others they could gradually come to learn that their foreign neighbors are human beings and not inhabitants of mad dog nations he writes.

The four corresponding cities corresponding to Marion are Chelmsford pronounced Chemzford in Essex county England with a population of 21,500 Vitry le Francois pronounced Veetree le fransw in the department of the Marne France with 8,300 people Ravenburg pronounced Raavenboork Wurttemburg Germany with 17,090 people and Corleone pronounced Korlaona province of Palermo Sicily population 15,300.

Says Mr Fields Do you know the world is spending $10,000,000,000 a year on armaments? It seems we are making preparations to kill each other. Why not come together and talk it over—not merely through polished diplomats and formal conferences but through friendly contacts between those who are close to the daily life of the average citizen?

He closes his pamphlet with the statement Intelligent cooperation among some of the towns and cities—including your own—could move the world.

Scientist Church Filled To Hear London Speaker

[illegible] Rucker Eddison, Member of Board of Mother Church, Speaks Here.

[illegible] Scientist [illegible] spacious and some [illegible] enough to hear a [illegible] Christian Science The Healing [illegible] by [illegible] of London Eng[illegible] a member of the [illegible] of The Mother Church The First Church of Christ Scientist in Boston

Arrangements were made to accommodate 600 in the auditorium by placing additional chairs but interest in the lecture attracted well over the seating capacity and some persons stood Flowers decorated the auditorium

A 30-minute program of organ music by Mrs [illegible] E Dombaugh preceded the lecture

Mr Eddison's Lecture

Following is a condensed account of Mr Eddison's lecture

Christian Science turns naturally to the Bible to learn about God for no body of people honors the Bible in greater degree [illegible] in the Bible Mrs Mary Baker Eddy the Discoverer and Founder of Christian Science discerned the truth she afterward set forth in the Christian Science textbook Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures and her followers find that the Bible grows more and more [illegible] to them [illegible] they study its pages in the light thrown upon them by Christian Science

As a result of her deep and persistent study of the Scriptures and [illegible] the spiritual [illegible] Mrs Eddy was able to answer the question What is God? in the Christian Science textbook as follows God is incorporeal divine supreme infinite Mind Spirit Soul Principle Life Truth Love (Science and Health p 465) This then is the God whom Christian Science enables us to know and understand and to find forever near because being infinite He is ever present

The way in which Christian Science enables us to know God is by helping us to understand more intelligently the life and work of Christ Jesus

Christian Science explains that there is a distinction between Jesus and Christ the term Christ [illegible] merely a synonym for Jesus The human Jesus was the best and greatest man that ever lived His example remains forever as the standard for Christian living He is the Wayshower in whose footsteps Christian Scientists endeavor humbly to follow It is impossible to exaggerate the debt which the world owes to the founder of Christianity He went about doing good—he healed the sick fed the hungry raised the dead

What was it that enabled him to do all this? Christian Science teaches that it was the Christ Truth which Jesus understood in fuller measure Jesus as Mrs Eddy has pointed out is a human name which the Master shared with others of his race Christ on the other hand is a divine title which refers to the spirituality expressed throughout his life and teaching In Science and Health (p 583) may be found this definition of Christ The divine manifestation of God which comes to the flesh to destroy incarnate error

Our Master said It is the spirit that quickeneth the flesh (that is matter) profiteth nothing When he healed a woman who is described as having been bowed together for eighteen years he said that Satan the devil had bound her and elsewhere he said of the devil or evil that he was a murderer from the beginning and abode not in the truth because there is no truth in him That which has no truth in it can not be real Christian Science therefore teaches that evil and all its manifestations are untrue unreal and the destruction by Christ Jesus of sin disease death all manifestations of evil—confirms that conclusion

We read in the first chapter of Genesis that God created man in his own image in the image of God created he him It follows then that as we discover the true nature of God we discover also the true nature of man To express the absolute unity of God and man His image Christian Science uses the term reflection It teaches us that man reflects and therefore expresses the intelligence resourcefulness and poise of Mind the freedom of Spirit the gentleness and kindliness of Love the strength and unwavering vigor of life Just as he abandons old false beliefs about God so the Christian Scientist abandons wrong concepts of man and strives to identify himself and others always with the spiritual reflection of his Maker

The thought of man as expressing the perfection of God which at first may seem new and strange speedily grows natural As the true idea of God and man becomes established in consciousness healing takes place This change in thought need not be complete before it can help us As soon as it begins to come about it brings better health in the widest sense of that word Every day it is being proved that men and women who have been suffering from illness or unhappiness from the ravages of selfishness from a sense of inability to cope with the tasks before them are finding in Christian Science health of body health of mind health in their business health in their relations with their fellow men Mrs Eddy beautifully expresses this in her poem, Christ and Christmas (p 53)

Forever present bounteous free
Christ comes in gloom
And aye with grace towards you
and me
For health makes room

In fact, the understanding of the truth about God and man brings the kingdom of heaven on earth

[illegible] be opened and [illegible] with power [illegible] [illegible] the speaker said

IMMUNIZATION PERMITS FOR DOGS DENIED HERE

Animals Won't Be Permitted To Run at Large Even Though Treated Dr Sifritt Says

In response to inquiries from dog owners concerning the issuing of certificates permitting dogs immunized against rabies to run at large County Health Commissioner Dr [illegible] N Sifritt said today that rabies immunization [illegible] not sufficiently perfect to warrant granting of such permits He advised however that owners who wish to protect particularly valuable dogs can have one shot treatments administered by veterinarians

These treatments most likely will prevent the animal from contracting rabies but may not because of the large number of types of rabies germs he said The only certificates issued by the health department during rabies quarantine are to kennel owners who wish to ship disease free animals in and out of the county he said

He again urged cooperation of dog owners in keeping their dogs at home during the six month quarantine declared Saturday

Dr Sifritt County Sanitarian Eugene B Willey and Dr H D Osborn of Waldo health board member attended a symposium on rabies last night at a meeting of the Columbus Academy of Medicine [illegible] chief of the division of laboratories of the state health department discussed the distribution and cause of the disease and said the present outbreak has come from the counties along the Ohio river where rabies is present nearly all the time

One dog coming in to Franklin county from the south bit 60 animals and [illegible] people before caught he said The disease has cost the state approximately $100,000 not including the loss of livestock animals and human life

Doctors at the meeting were advised to watch all animals for signs of rabies since cattle cats sheep and pigs may contract the disease and spread it to humans

"But there is nothing to indicate that Michael took it to the kitchen." That was M. Farrington bristling like a mother hen. "Surely one's handkerchief case is not under lock and key. It would be a simple matter for anyone to—"

For the first time in my life I interrupted M. Farrington and I did it rudely. "Yes I know," I said. "But it rather conclusively proves that the person who hurled that pot at Cook has been in the house long enough to be either borrowing or stealing handkerchiefs."

I should have had sense enough to realize the danger of putting all my cards on the table but it was blurted out beyond recall. And in characteristic ways every person in the room reacted to the statement.

M. Farrington hand flew to her throat with a quivering "Oh!" The Skipper sat suddenly bolt upright her face stern. Instinctively Gay clutched Mike's arm and they huddled together. Beyond them I caught a glimpse of Higgins' face and of William rigidly motionless. Annie and Cook began to jabber meaninglessly.

With an almost mechanical rhythm we eyed each one—you—you—you! It was horrible. Had a board creaked or a window rattled I firmly believe that we should have dived for shelter under the nearest pieces of furniture. But nothing creaked.

"You! You! You!"

The Skipper broke the spell. She pushed back her ... with a [illegible] "This is ... Why should anyone in this room strike Cook or Annie? And one of us would ... the kitchen to a queer reason. There is some one else in this house ... a person who ... has way through ... [illegible]

"You're lying!" I shouted.

"Search," said the Skipper promptly.

"Does anyone have a different opinion?" I said.

Breathless silence.

"Very well. We'll all go. There are nine of us." I did some rapid arithmetic. Four men, one along in years and one incapacitated. Of the five women Gay alone looked capable of walking across a room without staggering. In my coat pocket my fingers brushed the revolver with which I had disgraced myself earlier in the day.

"Higgins," I said, "take this revolver and stand on the landing. If anyone you don't know shows up in either hall you are to shoot, do you understand? And shoot straight. William—Miss Palmer, Mr. Michael and Miss Farrington are to go with you. Keep check on every member of your party and be sure that Higgins is at his post as you come out of every room. We'll search this room now. Then you wait in the hall and give Higgins moral support. When we finish the first room upstairs we'll signal Higgins and you can go through the next one down here and so on. Make sure of all the doors and—"

From the hall came a sound—a low agonized whimper that cut short my orders as if by the push of a button. I came from the hall and with it came another sound—a slow soft shuffling. It was coming nearer—nearer. The hair on my neck was prickling.

Nearer—nearer—it was in the room. For a moment I could not see a thing but one step brought me within full range of the open door.

We find havoc in Aunt Martha's room tomorrow.

commonplace explanations.

"We're all in a hotel as you know." Mary went on, "and Father Veritzen selected it because it was near the hospital where Olina is staying with her mother.

"I think if he could he'd camp down in the hospital also. I never saw such solicitude in my life as he is displaying for poor Queen Olga and her daughter. I wish he'd throw a little of it toward Noel and me."

"Hold it!" Dicky commanded, throwing up his hand dramatically. "That subject is absolutely taboo until you've had your dish of tea. Turn your mind in another direction and give me the low-down on what old Phil is doing in the dramatic line. Is he showing any signs of coming out of the ether? They tell me his offices are like a morgue and everybody is dripping with gloom while he is dangling outside the hospital door of a convalescent queen."

"But Uncle Dicky," Mary protested, "I can't answer that question without bringing up the taboo subject. That's just the reason I'm here."

Marriage Meddlers

BY ADELE GARRISON

Mary Appears on Verge of Hysteria Over Treatment by Father in Law

OH you dears! I thought I'd never get the chance to get here. And I do need you so.

Mary had gone directly from my arms to her uncle's and Dicky patted her shoulder encouragingly as she finished an outburst in which I thought I detected a faint note of something suspiciously like hysteria.

"Well, you've got us," he said, "both of us, right here with feet firmly planted on the ground and hands clenched into fists ready to defend you. Tell us which particular enemy you want eliminated first."

She laughed as I knew he had intended her to do and one could see plainly the tension of her nerves relax. It was as if a desperate runner had suddenly reached sanctuary.

"You might begin with my respected father in law," she said, and then the hysteria broke through her self-control and her voice unsteadily quavered "Damn him!"

She turned her head blindly against his shoulder but she extended one hand gropingly in my direction. With a signal which Dicky understood I went to her and took her into my arms.

Her Words Shocked Me

"Come over here and lie down, Dearest," I said, drawing her toward the porch hammock. "You shall tell us all about it in another minute or two but just let us take care of you for a little."

She submitted docilely while I drew off her hat and her smart white linen coat and settled her against the cushions of the couch. Dicky had disappeared at my signal and came back bearing a tiny glass of a pungent restorative which Katherine always keeps in readiness. I took it from him and put it against Mary's lips.

"Drink this, Dearest," I said, "and then rest quietly for a little. You won't waste any time, for you certainly are in no condition to talk now."

She quaffed the draught quietly, although she made a face at the end of it. Then she looked up at me with something pitiful in her eyes.

"I may have all the time there is," she said. "I don't know whether I'm going back to the Veritzen menage or whether I'm going to shake their dust from my feet."

Her words shocked and startled me although I had had a premonition of this speech or something akin to it when she had first come into my vision. Everything about her spelled tragedy and to Mary tragedy means simply separation from the young husband she adores.

Dicky Diverts Her

But I knew that I must let no hint of my reaction reach her. Better far to preserve a matter-of-fact manner with her. She was on the edge of hysteria I saw. Too much sympathy would set her off.

"Well, you don't have to decide that momentous question for the next ten minutes or so. Lie back and relax like a good girl. Your Uncle Dicky will entertain you while I make you a cup of that tea you like so well."

"Oh h," she sighed. "This is heaven to be here able to be myself and not have to watch every word every gesture for fear I'm getting Noel in bad. You'll make the tea strong, won't you, Auntie Madge? I haven't had a decent cup since you made me the last one."

"What!" Dicky exclaimed as I promised to make it strong. "You can't get a decent cup of tea in the Veritzen menage? I thought there was nothing from nectar to ambrosia that old Phil didn't have on tap."

"But it isn't his menage now, you know," Mary explained and I rejoiced that Dicky had diverted her mind from tragedy to

MINISTERS SUPPORT DRIVE ON GAMBLING

Association's Resolution Commends Mayor, Police and Municipal Court

Recent activities against alleged gambling operations in the city were given the strong moral support of the Marion County Ministerial association at a meeting yesterday morning in the city library.

"The Marion County Ministerial association wishes to commend the mayor, the police, the municipal court and all other persons who are waging a winning fight against gamblers in the city of Marion. As ministers we pledge our strong moral support," the resolution read.

Presented by a committee headed by Rev. Stanley W. Wiant of the Wesley M. E. church, the resolution was given the unanimous support of the association.

Rev. Harry Maag of the Prospect Street M. E. church, vice president, led the opening devotional service.

Mrs. Frances ... active in Marion music circles, was the guest speaker.

In a talk on Church Music she said that a choir can be effective only when every word sung is understood. A wholehearted cooperation is needed between pastor, choir leader and organist, she said, if the choir is to take its proper place in the activities of the church.

A choir should never sing without first going to God in prayer, she said, adding that the choir should set the example to the church in prayer, tithing and reverence.

Rev. Carl V. Roop of the First United Brethren church offered the closing prayer.

In Ohio History

(From the J. H. Galbraith ... history of Ohio historical written for The Associated Press.)

FIRST PARDON BOARD

The idea of a state pardon board originated in Ohio with Gov. Charles Foster. In his first inaugural address in January 1880 he stressed the need for such a tribunal. There was need, in his opinion, for an agency that would take the applications for clemency and give the cases careful study.

The legislature was not immediately impressed with the suggestion and nothing was done by it nor by the succeeding legislature. It was not until 1885 when J. B. Foraker was governor, that the state pardon board was created.

It was to be composed of four members—two from each of the two leading parties. Governor Foraker appointed to the first board

Economy Hysteria

They're accusing one another in Washington now of having "economy hysteria." That would be the opposite of "spending hysteria," no doubt.

Hysteria isn't improbable. The federal economy problem is no different from the household economy problem except that it's concerned with hundreds of millions instead of just hundreds. Household economy is tough enough, as most Americans know, to bring on hysteria.

It isn't as though money were being wasted or spent foolishly. All of it is being used for some good purpose. To save any of it means, therefore, that some good purpose will have to suffer. That's not easy.

What has happened is that the government has boosted its standard of living. But the tendency in government is to add expenditures more rapidly than it is possible to add income. Families have that trouble too, but because their credit is limited they don't usually have it very long at a time. In other words families always sail closer to the rocks of a loose fiscal policy than the federal government because it can go into debt farther.

No economy isn't easy. To save money is painful. Worthy purposes must be neglected. The standard of living must be brought down. Pennies must be pinched. In all probability certain necessities must be sacrificed. These things are obvious but they are not obvious yet to representatives, senators and jobholders in Washington.

Until they become obvious the federal government's budget never will be balanced. Unless they become obvious it will be painfully plain that the government has been growing more rapidly than the men who are responsible for operating it.

A Good Irish Idea

An interesting provision in the proposed constitution for Ireland, published last week by President Eamonn de Valera, is that dealing with election of senators.

There would be 60 of them, 11 nominated by the prime minister and the remaining 49 elected by the state. Thus the government could retain a working nucleus and the electorate still would control the majority, an admirable stabilizing device.

But the interesting thing is the fact that the 49 senators would be elected as representatives of economic and cultural sections instead of geographical sections. Half a dozen would be chosen by universities. Other aspects of national life—language, culture, agriculture, fishing, organized and unorganized labor, industry, commerce, public administration and social service—would be represented.

In the United States senators develop these interests some times, but frequently they simply lose out in the shuffle. For example, who are the gentlemen in the present United States senate looking out for fishing and unorganized labor? Somebody just try to answer that.

Fatal Mistake.

In Vienna a famous designer and his wife took their lives, explaining to everybody interested that the designer had made a bad mistake in planning a new bridge across the Danube.

This is an interesting variation of the rule which has caused captains and engineers to ride to death on ships and engines when a mistake caused an accident. In Japan even politicians with the same zest for life which most members of that occupation possess sometimes do away with themselves when they pull a boner.

It's one of those things a fellow can speculate about [illegible] because obviously it can't happen here. Occasionally one finds an [illegible] American who would rather get out of the picture than admit he might be wrong, but for the most part Americans cheerfully admit that everybody makes mistakes and they learn a lot that way. Whereupon they run [illegible] the [illegible] most [illegible] you know foreigners are coming to this country to see what the crazy Yankees have gone and done now.

Offstage

William Gillette would not have been surprised to learn from reading his obituaries when he died last week that the world considered him one of the great actors of his day. An actor who lives to be 81 years old without being forgotten knows he was more than ordinarily good.

Some of the other interesting things about Mr. Gillette which appeared in the obituaries had little or no connection with the stage. It was his theory, for instance, that gentlemen could be actors and that actors could be gentlemen. Then he said once that though he never intended to [illegible] he supposed he would have to keep on making farewell tours as long as he had to keep on living because acting was after all his business.

But the most revealing offstage story is about the three-mile railroad on the Gillette estate, The Seventh Sister. The man who played Sherlock Holmes so well that the character almost became the player, designed and operated this miniature railroad himself for the amusement of himself and his guests.

It's silly maybe, like believing in a man because he's fond of dogs, but a man who builds and operates his own railroad for fun probably would be worth knowing if he never had done another thing.

Seed

Nebraska's single house legislature has planted the seed of an idea in 17 other states. Though no survey to show what is happening has been made, it is reasonable to assume some of the 17 seeds are germinating and will send out sprouts.

Ohio's sprout is the Ohio Single House Legislature league, which announces it is ready to campaign for an amendment to the state constitution. If the present legislature won't submit a proposal, the league says it will circulate initiative petitions to put the question to a vote in 1938.

It does not follow from Nebraska's apparent success with a single house legislature in one term that the arrangement will be satisfactory in the long run or that other states have anything to gain by copying it. Interest in the plan, however, is intense due to general dissatisfaction with the way two house legislatures have been operating. The desire for improvement is stronger than convictions as to the exact form which improvement should take.

The Ohio Single House Legislature league offers as its honorary president U. S. Sen. Vic Donahey. This should give skeptics something to think about, for is it not an axiom that in this state Honest Vic always wins?

The Wagner Act

One question frequently asked about operation of the Wagner labor relations act is what constitutes interference with rights of employes. The Star presents below in another Associated Press article the replies given by responsible officials to questions on the law.

WASHINGTON, May 4.—What constitutes interference with employes' rights to form and join a union to bargain collectively?

Warnings by the employer against joining a union, lowering the job of an employe who joins, giving him work he can not do or in other ways seeking to force his resignation from the union.

Will the labor board move against an employer for doing any of these single acts?

It depends on the individual complaint. First an attempt is made to bring both sides together. This failing, a formal hearing by a board examiner is held. If the board considers it to have been shown that the action was to discourage unionization, a single instance might constitute actionable grounds.

How are employe representatives chosen? By the workers.

What if the representation is disputed?

The board investigates and conducts a secret election on petition of the employes.

Has the election mechanism been much used?

Eighty-eight times since the law took effect in October 1935.

Has a minority group ever appealed?

Yes, but there was no way of telling which was the minority or majority side until an election had been held.

Does the board allow minority groups to bargain collectively?

No. It insists only that the employer meet with the proper representatives of his employes and bargain in good faith.

What is the procedure, if any, when an individual worker appeals to the board for opportunity to bargain?

The board is concerned only with collective bargaining. Nothing under the act prevents an individual from approaching his employer to express grievances or make requests. If a collective contract exists, all employes must abide by its terms.

What happens when the board calls an election and it [illegible] there is no group approved by the majority? Are minority groups then unable to bargain?

In a case of this kind there has been a denial of certification by the board. Lacking such certification of a right to sit in bargaining, a minority group has no protection under the act against refusal of the employer to negotiate with it.

Can one union group question the right of another to appeal to the board?

An employe group contesting the right of another to represent all the employes can either file its own petition or can appear to testify at the hearing called to consider the petition of the rival group. [illegible] employe [illegible]

Garner Backs Economy Drive

BY PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, May 4.—The force behind this drive to cut down government expenses beyond the President's revised budget is (don't doubt it) the vice president.

The sage of Uvalde, Mr. Garner, continues to keep his lips taped whenever newspapermen are nigh. Yet there is evidence that he has taken hold of the expenditures matter with hand and spur.

He is doing far more prodding and pulling than a vice president ever did in his [illegible] before and apparently has Mr. Roosevelt's private but best wishes.

Signs

If you were looking for any outward signs of it you could have found one by hanging around the treasury door in recent weeks. After cabinet meetings, after White House conferences and other financial gatherings, Treasury Secretary Morgenthau has been riding back to his office in the vice president's car. The back seat of the Garner auto was really the conference chamber in which much of this 10 per cent cutting business was hatched.

At the capitol also Mr. Garner has been plugging in his own quiet way for the 10 per cent cut as embodied in the Byrnes resolution.

This means the Byrnes method seems to be the one officially preferred to all the others (particularly the Bankhead 15 per cent proposal) and it probably will be the one adopted.

Philosophy

Garner is one of the few politicos within the new order who is hot upon this economy subject. He has always been that way. The legend is that in the old days before 1933 when he was Democratic boss of the house he would not let anyone get on the appropriations committee who was not a budget cutter. He asked this question of candidates for the committee appointment so often that it still survives in the minds of the house members: "Are you in favor of cutting appropriations and balancing the budget and will you vote to do so?"

Anyone who hedged on the question had no chance of getting appointed on the choice committee spot.

Horse Sense

Also back in the days when Garner could talk he told friends his father started him out in life with this single admonition:

"Tell the truth always, be a gentleman, save more money than you spend and you'll have no worries."

He has lived by his father's advice and developed a strong personal objection to the new American custom of writing checks for everything. He says:

"You can't save money as long as you write checks."

Garner and other old timers who had pre-new deal experience with government finance are really worried about the trend of the budget, actually consider its increasing dangerous, if not alarming.

Rebellion

Mr. Roosevelt's government reorganization scheme is not getting headlines but it is involved in just as close a personal fight as the supreme court issue.

The situation changes rapidly but best thought at present is that the reorganization recommendations be split four ways. This means four different bills will be presented. Leaders decided to cut it up because if all the ideas were consolidated in one bill the whole program would be defeated overwhelmingly.

This way they may save some of it. Here is what they have in mind:

Compromise

Bill No. 1—Will extend the civil service to such agencies as Postmaster General Farley thinks have the proper new deal complexion. This bill will tend to perpetuate the Farley dynasty and will probably pass.

Bill No. 2—Will give Mr. Roosevelt authority to set up two new departments and reshuffle government departments as he may desire—but it will have this joker: The Interstate Commerce Commission and the Federal Trade Commission will be kept direct under congress and independent of any cabinet member or the President. Furthermore the Board of Rivers and Harbors will be kept where it is in the war department. This will keep Mr. Ickes from getting control of rivers and harbors work.

Bill No. 3. The comptroller general will remain independent of the treasury department just as he now is. He may be given some other title, possibly that of financial hat checker, but Mr. Roosevelt will not get control over him. This is definite. (Congressmen never liked Comptroller General McCarl because he quibbled a lot about whether a man slept in an upper or lower berth or whether he should have charged the government for a pair of half soles instead of a taxi, but he did a good job and they want another like him.)

Bill No. 4—This will give Mr. Roosevelt the authority and money to hire six new assistants. It is the one proposition which will go through congress whooping.

Gilbert White, Artist and Wit

BY O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, May 4.—Gilbert White's winter in New York has [illegible] stressed his fame as a leading international wit. For 20 years he has made a villa near Paris his base but his sallies are as well known in London, along the Riviera, in Shanghai and New York.

In appearance he might be William Jennings Bryan in a Latin Quarter hat and flowing tie, plus a nervous energy that suggests a hockey team in the last moment of play. As a portrait painter his sitters include many of the notables of England, France and America.

Several of his canvases hang in the Luxembourg and his murals decorate the Oklahoma Capitol and public buildings in Washington. A serious worker for months at a stretch, he likes to take several months off now and then to relax and let himself go.

On such occasions he usually heads for a stay with his lifelong friend Messmore Kendall, the New York capitalist. With White as a guest a dinner party usually becomes a rout. He is a brother of Stewart Edward White, the novelist, and a native of Michigan.

When White comes into Paris from his country estate the Place Vendome goes into a sort of Roman holiday — and the Ritz bars declare an extra dividend from the sudden puff of patronage. One of his favorite Americans is Charles G. Norris, the novelist, and when the latter arrives for his seasonal stay Paris really becomes Gay P—aree.

Architects have increasing calls for one floor homes in the suburbs. Some of the most elaborate this summer will be one storied. And the Big Idea is an expansive living room with a drop leaf table at one end on which to dine. Servants' quarters are adjacent and separate. Many home builders predict that 80 per cent of the country residences of the future will follow this plan. People who have lived in them once will live in no other type. The structures are [illegible]d to quick living—the breakfast [illegible] and of course there is the added advantage of cutting down the number of servants. The butler incidentally is becoming almost extinct.

Ben Finney, who has been hithering and thithering around the globe for many years and was long known as the Broadway night clubs' most consistent patron, has finally decided Waikiki Beach, Hawaii, is the world's prize spot. He has anchored there and secured a site upon which he expects to build and operate one of the finest small hotels in the world. It will have but 250 rooms, all de luxe. Finney is a Virginian who long had a penchant for squiring the most gorgeous of the show girls about during the peaks of their brief reign.

The show girl who probably had more admirers and beaux anxious to be seen with her in the after theater haunts during the top of her own reign was Lillian Lorraine. She long antedated Tallulah Bankhead as The Original Glamour Girl. But playboys with 100 tips had no especial appeal for her. She liked laughs and, like Fanny Brice with her Roger Davis, Miss Lorraine was more than likely to be accompanied by some obscure [illegible] revered only for banter among the boys at the corner [illegible]. She had a rollicking and musical Irish laugh and when she gave it full throated play it was the most contagious I have ever heard. As contagious as Joe Moore's. Helen Morgan was another during her sway who was angled for by all the boys who wanted to be seen with something to drool at in the night club.

I ran into a crochety old man attached to one of my [illegible] days. He always thought it a surprise I was able to wangle a living out of a calling he so long disgraced. But his best deflation was at this meeting. After a bit of talk he inquired as he turned to go: "What kind of work do you do now?" I walked away in the [illegible] response of a [illegible] pick without [illegible] my hat.

BROADER MEDIATION SERVICE SUGGESTED

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, May 4—Secretary Perkins proposed expansion of state labor mediation services today to help settle and prevent strikes during the development of collective bargaining.

She said in an address at the second [illegible] labor [illegible] collective bargaining conference.

The first of these conferences brought about [illegible] that it will be the purpose of management and labor [illegible] collective bargaining as it is defined in the national labor relations act (Wagner act) now the law of the land under the recent supreme court decision.

Many employers and workers however lack experience in collective bargaining. Because of this there will be need of cooperation among state and federal agencies engaged in conciliation work and representatives of labor and management—so as to minimize stoppages of work through misunderstandings by either workers or employers.

Seiter Courtney and Vanderhof All of Pleasant School Score Official Marks

On a fast and dry track at Prospect yesterday afternoon three county records were broken by athletes who were competing in elimination heats of the annual county track meet for the honor of entering the finals Eliminations were held in both the high school and elementary grade divisions of the 100 and 220 yard dashes and the 880 yard run Each runner was clocked and those turning in the six fastest times over the varying distances became eligible to represent their schools in the medal competition Saturday afternoon

Three Pleasant Township athletes posted new county track records Seiter made the high school 880 yard run in 2 15 6 which is just one tenth of a second better than the previous mark set in 1935 by Hoffman of Prospect The record even though it was made in an elimination heat will go into the books and Seiter will have the opportunity to take another shot at it when the finals are run Saturday

The other records which were bettered were in grade school competition Courtney of Pleasant won the century in 11 6 cutting two-tenths of a second off the previous mark set in 1936 by Jordan of Prospect Vanderhof the third Pleasant athlete to place his name in the record book finished the grade 880 yard run in 2 30 9 to cut the old mark by 1 3 seconds W Fitts of Prospect made the previous mark last year

Further elimination events are scheduled for tomorrow afternoon at 4 o'clock on the Prospect track and in addition the finals of medley relay which is the only competition to be completed before the Saturday program Eliminations will be held in the 440 yard dash and the 880 yard relay along with the medley relay finals In the medley relay teams from the participating schools will cover the distances of 220 110 110 and 880 yards

Saturday's program will open at 9 30 o'clock in the morning and continue throughout the day with track and field events for both the grade and high school athletes Three trophies will be presented to the high teams in the high school division and the winner and runner up teams of the grade division will also receive trophies In the high school competition the winners will receive medals and the contestants who finish in the following four positions will receive ribbons In the high school relays the winning teams only will receive medals

Turf's Classic Saturday

KENTUCKY DERBY--
THE NATIONS PRIZE 3-YEAR OLDS ARE EYEING THE GREATEST OF TURF PRIZES THIS WEEK!
THOSE DERBY VICTORY OATS
BURNLEY

By BURNLEY

THIS is the week when the eyes of the sport world are focused on the proud Southern city of Louisville site of America's greatest racing classic

The dream race of every equine three year old the Kentucky Derby will be run this Saturday and to the winner will go undying fame and the incomparable prestige of all Derby victors

Luck plays a commanding role in this gruelling turf test Because of the large field a horse is liable to be boxed out at the very start in such a way that victory becomes almost an impossibility

However given a reasonably fair getaway every gee gee is strictly on his own from then on for the Derby is a distance race which tests the courage and endurance of a horse to the utmost Derby winners deserve the plaudits and recognition that come their way for only a very good thoroughbred can cop these Kentucky oats

This year the usual high class field will face the barrier and I won't even attempt to pick the winner On second thought I will venture a prediction—here's a sure fire tip Gentlemen I give you the real winner of this and every other horse race—our big hearted pal the bookie

TIGERS COLLECT 19 HITS OFF 4 HURLERS TO TRIM WHITE SOX

Bees Sting Giants 3 1 Dodgers Overcome by Philadelphia 14 8

BY BILL BONI

Associated Press Sports Writer

The right mental attitude is a wonderful thing as witness the case of Gerald Walker fancy flying right fielder of the Detroit Tigers

Gerald was the king pin of the Tiger attack today as Mickey Cochrane and his men opened a home stand against the eastern clubs with the world champion Yankees Simultaneously the White Sox Indians and Browns were entertaining the A's Senators and Red Sox In the National league eastern teams played hosts

Walker had in recent seasons been criticized for headstrong or over impetuous base running that robbed him of hits and his mates of scores Gerald took those cracks to heart with the result that his game suffered

This spring he decided not to pay any attention to what he read about himself in the papers

Yesterday the Tigers took another half game margin on the second place Yanks Though rookie Pat McLaughlin lasted only three innings in his first starting game Detroit collected 19 hits off four White Sox pitchers to win 12 to 9

Biggest blow of the afternoon was Hank Greenberg's homer with the bases loaded Not only did it start the Bengals on their winning way but as Big Hank's second four bagger of the young season it was fairly conclusive evidence that his wrist isn't bothering him much any more

Walker chimed in with two hits

With the Indians and Browns rained out and the other teams unscheduled the Tigers and White Sox were the only ones active in the junior circuit

In the National league the four eastern clubs engaged in intramural war while awaiting the arrival of the league leading Pirates and other westerners

At Boston Billy Weir won his first 1937 game for the Bees in a pitchers duel with the Giants Hal Schumacher Each team bagged six hits but the Bees bunched four of theirs in one inning to gain a 3 1 victory

At Ebbets Field the Dodgers lost to the Phils 14 to 8 after four Philadelphia and five Brooklyn pitchers had paraded to and from the scene The Dodgers committed four errors and the Phils three The Phils collected 21 hits and the Dodgers 10

Kenaston Floors Nichols in Lively Wrestle T[illegible]

To the accompaniment of applause from fans who chose him as their favorite [illegible] Marine sergeant Bob Kenaston waded to an [illegible] over Hollywood's [illegible] Hugh Nichols in the top feature bout of last night's wrestling program at the Shovel gymnasium Joe Hubka Nebraska's [illegible] expert [illegible] through with [illegible] over the tough Texan [illegible] Venable in the second of the two headline scraps

Kenaston and his followers received an added treat when it was announced at ringside that Nichols a former light heavyweight title[illegible] had regained the crown in a match a week [ago] in Oklahoma City with Bobby Chick Chick held the National Wrestling association's crown less than six months having taken it from LeRoy McGuirk who in turn had lifted it from Nichols two years ago this month

So far as Marion fans are concerned Nichols is one of the most disliked titleclaimants ever to step in the smoking ring From the opening bell his efforts at seeking protection under the ropes had fans giving him the monicker of rope champion Although not a complimentary term it was mild compared to some of the epithets [illegible] in his direction upon his hair pulling and choking

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO May 4—Those loyal Milwaukee fans who didn't expect much of their 1936 champion Brewers when the Detroit Tigers called most of the stars away have been fooled twice so far this season

The Brewers not only were leading the league today—and have been since the start of the American association season—but the fans haven't even seen them lose a game at home

Manager Allan Sothoron's men won their fifth straight game of the season yesterday in the series opener with Louisville 7 to 6 to increase their leadership margin over Minneapolis to one and a half games The Millers bowed to St Paul 6 to 4 in 12 innings in the only other game of the day
